Missing you!!

Dad, where are you? Home is just not the same without you. Crying, I have been sitting on my bed, tears filling the room. All I want is to know where you are. Scared, lonely, alone, I needed you to help calm me when the storm was at its worst.

I have been doing really well in school. You would be really pleased because I won the 'Learning Hero' for getting all my times tables right. Mum has been making your favourite tea every night, which is also making me excited to come home from school. My friends just really don't get it, yet they are being extremely nice.

All we want you to know dad is that we are not angry, but very worried. I have put up lots of missing posters, so everyone is trying their very best to find you! Desperate, I feel is the only word right now. I love and miss you ever so much.

PLEASE COME BACK!!!
